After practicing separately for almost 10 years, Josh and Jeanne Sacks, parents of four young children, decided the time had come to open their own firm together. So, in 2004, Josh reorganized his Atlanta firm and expanded to open a second office in Cumming, where Jeanne runs her domestic law practice. As for Josh, his focus remains on plaintiff catastrophic injury and wrongful death cases, particularly trucking, car wreck, automotive product liability and medical malpractice.

The move certainly paid off for both lawyers. The Cumming domestic practice has taken off quickly. With her experienced staff and strong reputation, Jeanne has established a formidable presence. “We appreciate the opportunities we’ve been given and we take every client’s case very seriously.”

Josh attributes the firm’s remarkable success to a number of factors. “We treat our clients with the respect and dignity they deserve,” he says. “We give attention to detail at every turn.” The firm’s track record of multi-million dollar results is an impressive one.

As for Jeanne, she too highlights her personal connection with her clients. “Having children gives me an ability to relate to the day-to-day issues confronting many of my clients,” she says. “We give personalized attention and we aggressively analyze all facets of our clients’ situation.”

Both lawyers have a number of professional accolades to back up their success, including the highest rating, “AV,” from The Martindale-Hubbell legal directory. Josh recently was named a Rising Star by Georgia Super Lawyers, which was featured in Atlanta magazine

Together, this husband-and-wife team strives to provide the best possible representation to their respective clients and is making significant inroads in their respective fields of practice. “We are committed to a comprehensive approach to each case and each client.” Josh says.
